Eligibility Declaration Information

Use the COVID-19 Vaccine Rollout – Eligibility Declaration Form when you need to provide evidence that you are eligible for COVID-19 vaccination and you do not have other evidence.

Other evidence you can use to show that you are eligible for COVID-19 vaccination includes:

1. standard form of identification (e.g. drivers licence, passport) indicating you are aged 40 years or older
2. government issued document with date of birth (e.g. Centrelink, Medicare, Department of Veterans Affairs) indicating you are aged 40 years or older
3. a current work ID card showing employment at an eligible occupation
4. a letter from your employer confirming that you are currently employed in an eligible occupation
5. for household contacts of a quarantine / border worker, proof of occupation of the quarantine / border worker and evidence to demonstrate you live at the same residential address. For instance, this could include: bills or rates notices with both of your names and address, or separate documentary evidence that shows each of your names while showing the same address
6. a letter from your aged or disability residential care provider
7. details to enable the vaccine provider to access your MyHealth Record, if you have one
8. a referral from your GP or treating specialist confirming that you have a specified underlying medical condition
9. proof in the form of an alternative medical record that is dated within the last 5 years which shows that you have a specified underlying medical condition. This includes:
  - a printout of your medical history as recorded in your clinical records – i.e. your patient medical summary as printed out from your GP's practice
  - a printout of your chronic disease care plan from your GP
  - a discharge summary from a hospital or other medical facility
  - a script in your name for a medication that you have been prescribed to treat one or more of the relevant medical conditions or one or more of the procedures in the form attached.
10. a condition-specific identifier that you have been issued with, such as a National Diabetes Services Scheme membership card
11. documentation confirming you are a carer
12. travel exemption letter from the Australian Border Force which includes a statement saying you are eligible for COVID-19 vaccination

If you cannot provide any of the above as evidence of your eligibility, you may use the Eligibility Declaration Form attached. Note that for eligibility due to travel exemption, the only form of evidence acceptable is the travel exemption notification from the Australian Border Force as outlined above.

If you are eligible for vaccination because you are an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander person, verbal self-identification is the only evidence needed. You do not need to complete the Eligibility Declaration Form.

People aged between 18-59 years can choose to receive the AstraZeneca vaccine:

- following an appropriate assessment of suitability by a qualified health professional
- if they provide verbal or written consent.

If you choose this option, you will need to provide evidence that you are aged 18 years or older.

Instructions to complete the Eligibility Declaration Form

To complete the Eligibility Declaration Form, you must:

- confirm that you are eligible for COVID-19 vaccination. More information about people who are eligible for COVID-19 vaccination is available at www.health.gov.au by searching for 'When will I get a COVID-19 vaccine.'
- complete the details on the first page of this document. You can do this either on your computer, or other electronic device, or by hand.
- sign the form and bring it with you to your appointment to receive the vaccine.

If the person receiving the vaccine is not capable of completing and signing the form themselves, a legal guardian or substitute decision maker (e.g. someone acting under an enduring power of attorney) can complete the form on their behalf.
